GABLE HEADS CORTEGE WITH WIFE'S BODY

Arrange Funeral Services at Hollywood Memorial For Carole Lombard.

JURY HOLDS INQUEST

Recover Bodies of 9 Victims of Plane Crash, Squads Seek 13 Others.

(By International News Service)

LAS VEGAS, Nev.—Life called upon Clark Gable today for a scene more dramatic and poignant than any he ever played in pictures.

Accompanied by a party of close friends, he was to head a funeral cortege carrying back to Hollywood the crushed remains of his beautiful wife, screen star Carole Lombard.

Among those with Gable were Spencer Tracy, Mr. and Mrs D W. Griffith, Mr and Mrs. Nate Wolffe (Miss Lombard's agent), and William Collier, jr.

Legal formalities for the removal of Miss Lombard's body from Nevada to California were completed late last night at an inquest held before a three-man coroner's jury.

After hearing witnesses the jury ruled that the star "came to her death as a result of injuries sustained in the crash of a TWA liner en route from Las Vegas to California near Double or Nothing Mountain."

Identification of Miss Lombard's body, was made by Eddie Mannix, vice president and general manager of M-G-M studio, through wisps of her blonde curls which escaped the flame following the plane crash, and through dental records from Hollywood.

Earlier in the day, Icy "Double or Nothing" mountain, also known as "Doubleup" mountain, 35 miles south of Las Vegas, gave up the bodies of nine of the 22 persons who died in the crash last Friday night. The body of another woman, besides the screen star's, and the remains of seven of the 15 soldiers aboard the ship were recovered after great difficulty by a posse of some 50 soldiers and civilians.

The body of the other woman was believed at first to have been

SHIP PLUNGES FIVE MINUTES AFTER ATTACK

Latest Sinking Shows Nazis Stepping Up Sub Warfare Close To Seaboard.

13 RESCUED, 6 INJURED

Survivors Tell How Shipmates Perished In Flames After 2 Torpedoes Hit.

(By United Press)

NORFOLK, Va.—Twenty-three of a crew of 36 men apparently drowned or were burned to death Sunday morning when the American tanker Allan Jackson was torpedoed by a submarine, burst into flames and sank within five minutes off the North Carolina coast, the Fifth naval district revealed today.

It was the third merchant ship sunk within five days close to the Atlantic seaboard. These attacks by enemy submarines and other sinkings in the North Atlantic indicated that the Germans were stepping up their submarine warfare.

There were only 13 known survivors of the Allan Jackson's crew. Six of them, including the skipper and two of his mates, were in the naval hospital here for treatment of "serious injuries."

Four bodies were picked up in the water by a vessel that brought the survivors here last night. There was little hope that any of the rest of the crew survived. The others, it was feared, were trapped and cremated when the Standard Oil tanker became a pyre with flames shooting 100 feet into the air immediately upon being struck by two torpedoes.

The survivors told of sitting helplessly in the one lifeboat which they were able to launch while their shipmates screamed and burned to death on deck or

Battle Of Moscow In Reverse

Reports from the eastern front state the battle of Moscow, where the Nazis had attempted to capture the city with a giant encirclement, has gone into reverse with Soviet troops encircling and pinching off large Nazi troops units. One force of Reds is smashing at the Rzhev-Vyazma-Bryansk (A) line. On the sector between Leningrad and Moscow, the invaders are facing annihilation. Another Red force has by-passed Orel, with all the Soviet might aimed at smashing the Smolensk line.

Fierce Fighting Still Rages In Johore Section

British Acknowledge 15-Mile Retreat, Admit Offense Now Only 90 Miles From Singapore; Observers Say Final Stand Near.

(By Associated Press)

With the Japanese still advancing, Malaya's steaming jungle land, which the British had looked upon as a sort of natural Maginot line for Singapore, has taken its place as another outworn defensive concept and the battle for Singapore today became purely a test of fighting men and their weapons.

Some of the fiercest hand-to-hand combat in the history of war was in store, if not already in progress, along the narrowing, fluid line of defense in Johore state, well within 100 miles of the pivotal naval base which the British call their Gibraltar of the Orient.

The British acknowledged a 15-mile retreat in Johore's central sector and further Japanese infiltration along the western coast—tacitly admitting that the offensive was between 90 and 95 miles of Singapore—while the Japanese claimed a thrust down that same coast to within 25 miles of their goal.

Soon, but no one knew when nor where, the British imperials must make their final stand if the Japanese thrust is halted short of Johore strait. This is the water hazard which in the final analysis shields Singapore island with its invaluable naval installations.

Whoever is to hold Singapore may well control the course of the war in the southwest Pacific.

The official silence of the Dutch on land action indicated that the Japanese offensive from footholds gained in the Netherlands East Indies was marking time, pending outcome of the battle for Singaport.

However, the Dutch reported Japanese air raids on the Borneo oil port of Balik Papan and on the island of Sabang, off the northern tip of Sumatra. A lightship near Balik Papan was damaged when nine Japanese bombers swooped in with an escort of six fighters.

The Sabang raid, by three planes, caused no damage, the Dutch communique said.

Unofficially, the Dutch presumed that land fighting for possession of Minahassa, northeastern arm of the Celebes, was still under way.

A civilian who left Menado, capital of the province, before the Japanese landing near there a little more than a week ago, said the Dutch had complied preparations for a "scorched earth" retreat if necessary.

The newest report from the vast and complicated Chinese-Japanese war front, a Chungking communique, said that the Japanese had suffered 3,000 casualties, including the death of a brigade commander, in recent operations in the northern Kiangsi province.

In the face of a Tokyo declaration that the battle which General Douglas MacArthur's forces for possession of Batan Peninsula,

Hall is the second coach to resign at Butler in the past year. Coach Robert Burgett resigned last March and Hall replaced him. Hall plans to leave Friday if a successor can be found by then.

Robinson said he had three applications today from the Wittenberg college placement bureau. The Butler board of education is expected to meet this week to hire a new coach.

HEADS FOR PORT

Half-Sunken Liner Making Its Way To New York.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(INS)—The half-sunken, 7800-ton Grace liner Santa Elisa was slowly making its way to New York today following a head-on collision with the United Fruit company's 3300-ton San Jose, which sank 15 miles southeast of Atlantic City.

Although United Fruit company officials reported all hands accounted for, the first of the rescued crew at Newport News, Va., said they saw the captain and the first mate of the San Jose standing on the bridge just before the ship sank.

Immediately after the crash Saturday night, the Santa Elisa burst into flames and burned for 12 hours. The San Jose sank within an hour of the collision.

JOINS CAMPAIGN FOR SCRAP IRON

Mansfield Legion Post Plans To Organize Metal Salvaging Program Here.

While McVey Post in Mansfield and other American Legion posts throughout Ohio joined in a national campaign yesterday for the salvaging of scrap iron needed for war production, federal authorities asked city officials to support the drive.

Sam Fox, commander, said McVey post would cooperate fully in the program announced in Columbus yesterday by the Ohio Department of the Legion. He said details of local activity would be worked out next week.

Mayor W. J. Locke received a letter from Samuel Slotsky, regional information consultant of the Office of Production Management, asking that the administration "take steps in alleviating" the lack of scrap metal. Mayor Locke left yesterday for a vacation trip to Florida but Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said he would investigate the matter.

Answering the appeal by Gov. John W. Bricker that they scrap every car made in 1933 or earlier to provide 100,000 tons of scrap steel, Mansfield auto wreckers and 1,000 others from all parts of the

Miller Becomes Mayor As Locke Goes To Florida

Council President Howard G. Miller became acting mayor of Mansfield today but he was without any official notification from Mayor William J. Locke that he was to take over the mayor's duties.

Mayor Locke left yesterday for a two-week vacation in Florida. Miller said he understood that he was acting mayor since the mayor went away, but he said the mayor himself had not informed him of his intended absence from the city.

Asked before leaving if he had left any instructions in connection with the case of Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger who refused an administration request that he resign, Mayor Locke said that Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton is handling that."

Crafton said today that he plans no immediate action.

As to his trip Locke said he "didn't know where" he was going, but other members of the party said they planned to motor to Miami, Fla. Accompanying the mayor were Rep. John L. Catlett, Joseph G. Diemer, service station proprietor, and Howard M. Doner, insurance counselor.

Catlett said he will spend about four days discussing legal matters with a Miami client before joining the others in vacation activity such as fishing and golf.

Shiloh Wife Says Husband Burned Her Clothing.

A Shiloh man whose wife said he burned her best clothing and struck here yesterday to keep her from going out was in the county jail today on a charge of assault and battery.

The husband, Joe Price, 31, was taken into custody by deputy sheriffs after he tore up a warrant that was served on him by the constable at Shiloh. Mrs. Price filed a charge yesterday in Justice of Peace C. D. Nelson's court at Shiloh and another today in municipal court, here.

She told sheriff's deputies that Price took her clothing and burned it in the yard in an attempt to keep her from going out with friends.

Sheriff's officers said they were notified of domestic trouble at the Price home last week, but Mrs Price refused to file charges against her husband then.

THREE INJURED IN SCHOOL BUS

Ruggles Children Seriously Hurt When Truck Crashes Bus; 13 Others Bruised.

Three Ruggles school children were injured, two seriously this morning when a lumber truck skidded and crashed into the rear of a school bus on U. S. Route 224, a mile and a half east of Ruggles in Ashland county. Thirteen other children on the bus were bruised and shaken up.

Slippery roads and fog made Mansfield area roads dangerous for travel but the nearest weekend fatal accident was at Tiffin where three persons were killed after their automobile met another in a head-on collision.

The Tiffin deaths brought the state traffic death toll for the week-end up to 17.

The school bus accident near Ruggles occurred while the bus was picking up children en route to the Ruggles consolidated school.

Elmer Huff, Wellington, R. D. 4, driver of the lumber truck, told Ashland County Sheriff Dale Hammond that his truck skidded on the slippery pavement and crashed into the rear of the bus, despite his efforts to avoid the collision.

Injured were two brothers, Al-

He will have to undergo a long rest, it was said. DNB said Hitler sent him best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Whipp has been a member of the department since March 6, 1929 while Hartnett has served since Jan. 1, 1933. Both men were highest on a list of patrolman eligible for the post, having competed with fellow-patrolmen in civil service examinations.

Test Of American Solidarity Nears At Rio Meeting

RIO DE JANEIRO—(AP)—The first big test of American solidarity in a world at war approached today with Argentina still shying at an immediate decision on a proposal for every republic of the Americas to break all relations with the Axis.

In advance of any actual voting showdown, observers expressed belief that the Argentine delegation and perhaps that of Chile would oppose outright severance of relations which representatives of the 19 other American republics reportedly favor.

Argentina's foreign minister, Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, conferred at length yesterday with President Getulio Vargas of Brazil, U. S. Under-Secretary of State Sumner Welles, and Juan Bautista Rosetti, foreign minister of Chile.

"I can definitely say," Ruiz Guinazu declared later, "that there will be no Argentine decision tomorrow."

Other nations, with Brazil playing an especially active part, kept up considerable pressure to bring Argentina to a decision—today if possible.

'Victory In Advance', Topic. Discussed At Baccalaureate

"Victory in Advance" was the topic of the baccalaureate sermon delivered by Rev. D. N. Roller of the First Presbyterian church to graduating seniors from Mansfield Senior high school in the church last night.

The program was the second staged for the 96 pupils in Senior week exercises which began last Friday with a class day program in the school auditorium.

Rev. Roller began his sermon by reading the Bible, John 16, to tell how Jesus before His crucifixion told His followers that He had already achieved His victory over the world and that no matter what happened later, He had already won.

"This victory is not in terms of marching armies or even a prediction of the sweep of Christianity over the world, but rather a personal victory in that Christ knew that he had successfully met the challenge of the world," Rev. Roller explained.

From this point the sermon was divided into four sections which emphasized that today's victories can be won before the day starts, tomorrow's victories can be won today, adult victories can be won in childhood and that this generation can win the victories of the next.

"Along this line I'd like to quote the Duke of Wellington who mentioned one time that the battle

3 Draft Registration Days Decided Upon For Men 20-45

Richland county men between the ages of 20 and 45 who are required to register next month will have three days in which to sign up for possible service in Uncle Sam's army, state selective service headquarters announced today.

Registration places will be open from noon until 6 p. m. Feb. 14 and 15 and from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. Feb. 16. The Saturday and Sunday afternoon registrations on Feb. 14 and 15, were arranged for the convenience of men who may have difficulty leaving their work to register Feb. 16, which is on Monday.

Clerks of Richland county boards said today that the Feb. 14 and 15 registration dates will be for men who cannot register Monday and urged others to wait until Feb. 16 to sign up.

County boards will choose registration places this week. They plan to use some school buildings for the Feb. 16 registration and to solicit the help of volunteer workers. They have already received an offer from the members of the American Legion auxiliary in Mansfield who said they would help in the registration places.

All men who reached their 20th birthday on or before Dec. 31, 1941, and who have not reached their 45th anniversary Feb. 16 will be required to register unless they were registered at one of the two preceding registrations in October, 1940, of July, 1941.

DRIVE: Russians Threaten To Capture Four More Key Cities

(By United Press)

LONDON—Mozhaisk, Orel, Kursk and Kharkov, the four anchor points of the German line on the 600-mile front between Moscow and the Sea of Azov, are all imminently threatened by ferocious Russian attacks, Russian advices indicated today.

It was asserted further that the Russians were now within 60 miles of Smolensk, whose loss might force the Germans back to the Dnieper river, 300 miles from Moscow.

The Moscow radio asserted that Mozhaisk was aflame and that Russian troops were fighting the Germans hand to hand in the streets amid the flames, while massed fleets of German dive bomber planes sought desperately to impede the attack by bombing the Russian rear.

Red army tanks and motorized troops were reported to have stormed Orel, 210 miles south of Moscow, and to have captured the eastern half of the city including the great factories which the Germans had converted into fortresses. Russian artillery was reported heavily bombarding the Germans in the other half of Orel, across the frozen Oka river which runs through it.

The official newspaper Izvestia reported a violent fight in the region of Kursk, which is 85 miles south of Orel.

At Kharkov, the industrial center of the Donets river basin, 125 miles south of Orel, the Russians were reported fighting their way toward the city through the outer suburbs.

A special Moscow radio broadcast said that the Russians had captured 142 inhabited places in two days of fighting and last night's Russian war communique announced the freeing of Polotnyi-

PLOT: U Saw, Premier Of Burma, Arrested By British

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Premier U Saw of Burma, who quit London last November in a huff after failing to obtain dominion status for his country, has been arrested by the British for plotting with the Japanese.

An official announcement today indicated seizure of the round-faced, skirt-wearing little Oriental had balked a conspiracy to hand over to the Japanese the British Asiatic possession which holds a vital role in the defense of Singapore.

This statement, issued from No. 10 Downing street, Prime Minister Churchill's official residence, said U Saw had been "in contact" with the Japanese since the outbreak of war in the Pacific.

"This fact has been confirmed by his own admission," the statement added.

Just where U Saw was taken into custody was not disclosed. He went to Washington from London and was in Hawaii on his way back home when the Japanese started the war in the Pacific. This forced him to reverse his journey.

This suave, polished U Saw was considered one of the most picturesque characters in the political-diplomatic world. The "U" in his name means reverend sir," or familiarly "uncle" and is given elder statesmen and other Burmese of prominence as a mark of respect.

Burma, lying between Japanese-Dominated Thailand and India, offers a starting point for a flank assault upon the Japanese invaders of Malaya and is the starting point of the Burma road, over which moves American and other war supplies for Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek forces.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — Donald Nelson's job is to convert the productive machinery of the United States from the uses of peace almost 100 per cent to the uses of war.

It is to reorganize our tens of thousands of individual competing manufacturing establishments into a single vast machine for production in which these formerly independent units are independent no longer, but become interlocking cogs devoted to the single purpose of war.

Gen. Johnson.

It is a "demand and supply" problem. To solve it effectively, Nelson must have a very wide discretion over both war demand and war supply.

War "demand" is the requirements of the various war-making services — army, navy, maritime commission and Allies. War "supply" is the output of the resources and facilities of the United States—raw materials, manufacturing, and transportation.

You can't do this as you would herd cattle. Both supply and demand must be so organized that each understands the problems, capabilities and limitations of the other. They must be brought together, through their representatives on their own committees—industry by industry and commodity by commodity.

There, under the direction of Nelson's chosen representatives from his war production board, who must have the last and deciding word on every question, they must work together as partners in the common cause of maximum production.

This requires that there be organized for each industry or commodity group, a representative "industry committee" which can speak for all its members. Although this absolute necessity has been preached for many years and OPM gave it lip-recognition, nothing effective was done. Only recently has the automobile industry had such a committee and there are few others.

But that is only half of the task of organizing as a team and bringing together and marrying "war demand" and "war supply." "War demand" has been almost as confused as "war supply."

To begin with, many more or less independent government organizations, each with tremendous supply programs, have been competing with each other with little government supervision.

The four great competing groups are army, navy, maritime commission and lease-lend. That only begins to tell the story. Certainly, army, navy and lease-lend are hydra-headed in their procurement activities.

The army has several independent purchasing bureaus—nine as I recall. The navy has three or four. Lease-lend oragnizations in Washington has as many different separate "demands" as the united nations.

It will be almost impossible for Nelson to deal with this great clamoring confusion under so many heads. Failure to co-ordinate this miserable condition is as responsible for our past delay as any other single cause.

Each of these great service "demand" departments should be required to iron out all conflicts between its own demand subbureaus before it comes to Mr. Nelson.

For this purpose each must have a sort of "procurer general" who has sufficient authority over his sub-bureau chiefs to be able to compose their differences and to present the demand of his department with a single voice. There would then be only four great demand organizations with which Nelson would have to deal and from which he could get a clear and concise picture of total requirements.

He must have absolute authority to iron out conflicts among them and get a complete demand program. This he should break down into its separate industrial and commodity groups, call his "industry committees" to meet with him and committees from these four great demand organizations and make his decisions which must be final.

There is nothing academic or theoretical about this. It is the condensed experience of ourselves and other combatants in World War One and largely in this war.

I think Nelson understands and desires exactly this set-up. It is a little too early to chirp, but, if these conjectures prove true, I think the worst of Washington fumbling is over and we will really be going to town.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

New York Is a Friendly Town.

Visiting out-of-towners have two favorite cliches about Gotham that have always irked me. The first naturally, is that time-worn chestnut: "New York is a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there.

Kilgallen

Along with some seven million neighbors, I take violent issue with this statement, but I'm resigned to hearing it every time I pass through Grand Central or Pennsylvania Station. More often than not, I suspect, it's the envious catch-phrase of a remote inlander who secretly would love to live no farther from Times Square than you can throw Broadway Rose.

"New York is such a cold town!" is the other outland outlandishness that bothers me.

Actually, New York is a friendly town, probably more friendly than any other in the world today. It is that way because New Yorkers are burdened with a collective worry that we'll be accused of coldness, and we labor twice as hard at being neighborly to visitors as do residents of any other hamlet. Perhaps our amiability is not the intimate, inquisitive kind found in towns with Pop 1,500, but I'm sure it's as open-handed and cordial as the variety of hospitality found in Chicago, San Francisco or New Orleans—towns that go to great lengths to assure their fellow Americans that they're super-friendly.

As a matter of fact, a committee has been formed here recently to proclaim this simple truth. It's called the "New York Is A Friendly Town" group and its purpose is to brighten the furloughs of the thousands of soldiers, sailors, marines and flying corps students who descend on the town every weekend. The committee arranges dances, night club junkets, sight-seeing tours, parties, sports outings and the like for the visiting delegations from Uncle Sam's armed forces.

Frank Case, genial host of the Algonquin Hotel, who heads one section of the committee, informs me that the movement was organized both to aid in bolstering defense morale, and also to eliminate once and for all the fable about Gotham's frigidity.

Sure, New York is human.

Walk into a Broadway movie theater. The usher may not wish you a slap-on-the-back good evening, but he'll kid with you about waiting for a seat, help you locate the girl you lost, even give you a synopsis of the picture if you came in late.

Talk to a new York taxi driver. Cabbies are the wisest people in the world. They'll give you the inside dope on anything from Hitler's next move to what Churchill really said to Roosevelt.

Grab a seat or a strap in a speeding subway. Yes, even in the subway you'll find a friendly New York. The riders may fight you tooth and nail for a seat, they may step all over you getting out, but watch what happens to their faces and their manners when a mother brings a little baby into the car. Or if you're lost, ask them how to reach any place on the map of New York. You'll find a whole group of unofficial guides gathering around to supply the answers.

Of course New York is a friendly town. Learn it by wandering down to the water-front and chatting with the seamen on shore leave. New York is another port of call to them—but it's also a second home.

URGES AGENCY TO AID LITTLE BUSINESS MEN

Anti-Trust Official Called By Patman Committee To Discuss Plan.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Little business may get a government agency of its own to handle its needs and problems as a result of investigations being conducted by two special house committees.

Operated by and for owners of small business establishments, the new agency proposed by a justice department official would serve as a "forum, a trouble-shooter and an advocate" for the small operators.

Guy Holcomb, head of the small business section of the justice department's anti-trust division, who made the suggestion to a special house military committee, was called upon today by the Patman small business committee to elaborate on it. Requested to testify with him was Thurman Arnold, head of the anti-trust division.

Holcomb's suggestion was greeted with enthusiasm by leaders of several hundred small business men who came here for the opening of the Patman committee's hearings. They had complained of inability to get action through existing agencies and bureaus and said most of the small business man's time when he came to Washigton was spent cooling his heels in outer offices waiting to see various officials.

Throughout the Patman committee hearings, spokesmen for the "little fellows" have complained they would be forced out of business by the defense program unless some changes are made and made quickly.

In urging creation of the special agency for small business men, Holcomb asserted that a program must be worked out for the continued existence of small industry during and after the war.

Chairman Patman (D.-Tex.) of the small business committee said his group proposed to find out whether or not "adequate consideration has been given to the needs of small business engaged in non-defense activity, or engaged in the transition from non-defense to defense activity, and whether or not small business is being treated fairly . . . through the allotments of valuable materials . . . or in the granting of priorities or preferences in the use, sale or purchase of these materials."

$1,277 More Received Over Week-End; Benefit Dance Nets $621 Contribution.

Funds for the Richland county Red Cross war relief fund rose to $41,916 over the week-end, $1,277 more than was reported Saturday and $10,916 more than the goal set for the drive.

Of this money, $621 was contributed by Italian-American citizens in Mansfield from donations received in a house to house canvas and a dance given Saturday in the Eagles hall. The dance was under the direction of Michael Augustine, 396 West Sixth street.

Other donations reported this morning were $175 from the Kearns Packing company and its employes, $118 from the Humphryes Manufacturing company employes, $50 from the North American Knitting Mills company, and $138 from Shiloh and Cass township.

Although the Red Cross has ended its official drive and this afternoon will vacate offices in the Farmers' bank building, Mansfielders may still make contributions at regular organization offices at 11½ West Fourth street.

The Italian-American group gave their dance using contributions from members to furnish the hall, the orchestra and decorations. Augustine estimated there were 265 paid admissions.

TIRES ON YOUR CAR CAN BE MADE TO LAST TWICE AS LONG

If you are lucky enough to have good tires on your car in the midst of the tire famine, you can make them last twice as long by observing a few simple rules.

The first rule for tire conservation is proper inflation, according to John B. Coleman, manager of the Mansfield division of the Standard Oil company. Keeping your tires at the right pressure will give you twice the mileage you would get if tires are driven when they are under-inflated. He explained that tires only 40 per cent inflated will give only 17 per cent of the proper mileage.

The second rule for saving tires is moderate driving speed. High speeds wear tires rapidly. Driving at 60 miles an hour may reduce tire mileage by one-half. Thirty-five miles an hour is the best speed for saving tires.

Keeping the wheels of your car in proper alignment is another important point to remember. Experiments show that a tire one half inch out of line is dragged sideways 87 feet in every mile of driving.

Shifting tires at intervals helps to equalize the wear on them and makes them last longer. Rear tires take more punishment than the front ones. Changing tires from one side of the car to the other also makes them wear better.

Government officials estimate there's less than a year's supply of rubber left in the United States. Rubber is needed badly in war production, and at the rate it is being used, there may be none left for tires in a short time.

HALF MILLION GALLONS LOST IN BLAST, FIRE

Onlookers Trampled as Blaze Rages Out of Control at Sacramento.

(By International News Service)

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—A terrific gasoline and oil fire raged out of control today at a fuel depot north of the Sacramento city limits, destroying nearly 500,000 gallons of oil and gas and injuring at least 11 persons.

Three of those injured were firemen, while others hurt were bystanders trampled in waves of panic amongst the crowd of onlookers as 15,000-gallon tanks of gasoline exploded and sent flames rolling over the area for a distance of two blocks.

Besides more than a score of fuel tanks destroyed, flames gutted the Sunshine Biscuit warehouse and several nearby structures.

Fire companies from Sacramento, five surrounding communities, and the U. S. army Sacramento air depot were summoned to the blaze, but fire fighters were hampered by a shortage of fire hydrants.

Scene of the fire is on the edge of the warehouse district of Sacramento. In the immediate vicinity are grain and food warehouses, a railroad freight depot and trucking concerns, all endangered. A series of blasts sent flames hundreds of feet in the air as large fuel tanks exploded.

The depot was used as a distributing center for five oil companies. Also destroyed were several tank cars and freight cars on an adjoining siding.

Soldiers were brought from the air depot to help guard the area, while American Red Cross ambulance units stood by to rush injured to hospitals.

The fire started shortly before midnight at the Sunland Oil distribution plant. According to witnesses, Ted Hilscher, 30, truck driver, was unloading gasoline from his truck when a nearby electric pump motor ignited fumes and one of the main storage tanks burst into flames. Hilscher was severely burned about the face and hands.

Federal agents were on the scene, but had no comment to make.

BRITISH FALL BACK ON MALAY BATTLE FRONT

Major Test Nears as Japs Continue Their Drive Toward Singapore.

Luzon, was near a decisive stage, the war department in Washington announced that operations were in the doldrums.

A Domei dispatch admitted the stubbornness of the American-Filipino resistance, saying that strong barricades across jungle paths and enfilading fire from hidden artillery had held the Japanese advance to "but a few meters per hour."

Said the Washington communique:

"Ground operations during the past 24 hours were of a desultory nature. Enemy patrols were active and some incidental skirmishes took place with indecisive results.

"Enemy air activities were confined to frequent reconnaissance flights."

Gravely disturbed by the progress of the Japanese drive down through Malaya—an advance of 250 miles in six weeks—London's critics of the Churchill government demanded immediate parliamentary debate on Asiatic reverses.

The prime minister may make a war strategy statement next week. He returned from conferences in Washington and Ottawa only Saturday.

The Japanese threw troops at the Pownall line sector held by the Australians in Johore state some 110 miles north of Singapore and attempted their now familiar flanking landings on the western Johore coast.

Domei, Japanese news agency, broadcast from Tokyo a report that the Japanese had captured Pontian Besar, 25 miles from Singapore.

The British Far East command acknowledged that the Japanese had pushed farther southward in the coastal belt of the Muar river area, some 90 miles from Singapore, and spoke of Japanese pressure on the Segamat front.

Segamat, on the main railway to Singapore, is about 15 miles below Gemas and about 95 miles from Singapore.

The Australians and British earlier said they had smashed landing parties on the West Malayan coast.

It was jungle warfare by separate groups instead of massed battles like those of Russia and Africa and the Japanese were finding the Australians tough customers.

In what virtually amounted to an order of the day, Major General Gordon Bennett, leader of the jungle-trained and high-spirited Australians, told his men that "we've got to go out after the Japanese and get them or else they'll get us."

He discarded any thought of a waiting game and called for aggressiveness.

His artillery pounded the Japanese in the sector where between 800 and 1,000 Japanese were killed in an Australian ambush last week.

Along the coast, Australians helped an Indian force mop up the Japanese who gained a temporary foothold at the mouth of the Muar river, 90 miles northwest of Singapore island, the combined forces destroying eight enemy tanks and sending the remnants of the Japanese force hunting for cover in the rubber trees.

Singapore itself took a beating from Japanese planes Sunday.

The British acknowledged for the first time that raiders damaged the naval base area, setting fire to fuel oil.

The Japanese in Tokyo said their bombs had damaged the headquarters of the British Far Eastern command.

The British called up more men to defend Singapore.

All European male Britons under 41 not already serving in the fighting forces were ordered to register Wednesday for military duty.

A gallant band of Americans and Filipinos was contributing materially to the united nations defense of Singapore and the Netherlands East Indies by holding in check a large army of Japanese on Luzon Island but there seemed no doubt that its situation was deteriorating.

In two weeks, relentless Japanese pressure has forced the men of General Douglas MacArthur 20 miles on the Batan peninsula, even though at tremendous cost to the invaders.

The war department reported yesterday General MacArthur won back some previously lost positions. But there were signs that the Japanese were grouping their preponderant strength for a fresh offensive to defeat the MacArthur army as soon as possible and press on to richer fields.

Jap Warlords Rule With Iron Hand

WASHINGTON —(INS)— With the Japanese warlords ruling occupied areas of the Philippines with an iron hand, the invaders have renewed their effort to end all resistance in the islands with brief military action along the North Bataan front, the war department reported today.

The department disclosed that in forcing the yoke of their military rule on conquered areas of the islands, the Japanese have "dispossessed" Philippine residents of transportation and even their homes.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commanding the combined American-Filipino defenders, advised the war department further that native farmers "have been evicted from their homes," and that crops and foodstuffs "have been seized."

Planes On Way, Aussie Chief Told

MELBOURNE, Australia—(UP)—War Minister F. M. Forde cabled the Australian force in Malaya today that the government was taking emergency steps to strengthen the Imperial Air Force there.

Forde congratulated Maj. Gen. Henry Gordon Bennett, commanding the Australians, on the "magnificent" fight of his men and said the government and people of Australia had the greatest confidence in him.

A ministry of information spokesman in a national broadcast yesterday had said that reinforcements of men and planes were arriving in Malaya in such force "that we may soon equal or surpass the Japanese air strength in Malaya."

1,235 Americans From Wake Reach Japan

TOKYO — (Official broadcasts recorded by United Press)—The official Domei News agency said today that 1,235 American survivors from Wake Island, which fell to the Japanese Dec. 23 after a 15-day siege, had reached Japan.

The party included 30 officers, 423 non-commissioner officers and enlisted naval men, and 782 civilians, it said.

The prisoners, mostly wearing heavy beards and unpressed uniforms, brought duffle bags containing their personal effects, the dispatch said. Some of the officers brought trunks.

They included Commander Winfield Scott Cunningham of Wisconsin, commander of the American forces on Wake, Maj. Paul Putnam, commandant of the air force there and the civilian who had been in charge of 1,050 defense employes, Domei said.

any Zavod, 18 miles northwest of Kaluga on the railroad between Kaluga and Vyazma.

Russian dispatches, while they spoke of German counter-attacks in some areas, implied plainly that these attacks were merely desperate attempts to prevent the entrapment of big German forces, and such phrases as "breaking enemy resistance" "disintegration of the German line," and "mass surrenders" were increasingly used.

Stockholm dispatches reported that the main railroad between Moscow and Leningrad was in operation again as the result of Russian successes in the north and that food and arms were being sent to Leningrad, in evidence that it was no longer besieged.

Major Clash Near In African Campaign

CAIRO —(U.P.)— British forces counted almost 15,000 German and Italian prisoners on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier today while Imperial columns pushed toward Tripolitania for a possibly decisive clash in the North African campaign.

As weary Axis defenders of captured Halfaya pass limped out of the war, the British reported a mounting number of enemy troops captured in the reoccupation of Bardia, Solum and Halfaya. Less than 100 Imperial troops were killed and 400 wounded in the three operations, Middle East headquarters said.

Forty-eight German officers and about 1,800 soldiers were reported captured at Halfaya along with 172 Italian officers and 2,700 soldiers.

The fall of Halfaya opened a clear road to the west, eliminating the necessity of further British detours. Concentrating far westward from their starting point in the present offensive, the British now were reported preparing in the El Agheila sector, 350 miles west of Halfaya, for one more assault on Gen. Erwin Rommel's Afrika korps.

The Bellville troop ran a close second with over 300 books collected in one trip.

9 PLANE CRASH VICTIMS FOUND that of Miss Lombard's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Peters, but there was some doubt of this today. It later was thought it might be that of Mrs. Lois Hamilon, wife of an army officer who was en route to the west coast to join her husband.

Recovery of the bodies of the remaining victims of the crash continued today.

Papers found in the purse of Miss Lombard also aided in her identification.

These concerned inter-American relations work in which Miss Lombard had been active, and the defense bond sales drive, in which Miss Lombard had participated in Indianapolis last week. She was returning from the bond drive when she met her death.

Her body will be prepared for removal to Los Angeles immediately. Funeral services will be held at Forest Lawn Memorial park, where similar services were held for such other motion picture greats as Will Rogers, Marie Dressler and Jean Harlow.

Witnesses at the inquest told of the difficulties in removing the bodies from the wreckage of the totally demolished plane and bringing them down the treacherous mountainside.

The bodies first were hoisted 400 feet up the sheer cliff, into which the plane crashed, onto a ledge. Atop the ledge they were loaded on horses' backs for the perilous trip down the rugged mountain.

Miss Lombard's body was carried in the same army blanket as that of the woman at first identified as her mother. The two bodies were the first to reach Las Vegas. When seven other bodies were recovered the inquest was ordered.

Deputy Coroner Jack Larry said Stewardess Alice Getz was identified by parts of her uniform which still clung to her charred body. Eight of the bodies were so badly burned as to be unrecognizable, it was reported by authorities who first reached the scene.

Gable was inconsolable. Several times he sought to make the trip up the mountainside, but was dissuaded. When friends urged him to return to Hollywood and rest, he replied:

"I don't want to return to an empty house."

John A. Collings, assistant superintendent of operations for TWA, said after viewing the wreckage of the plane:

"This is the most completely obliterated crashed plane I have ever seen."

Other TWA officials, representatives of the Civil Aeronautics Authority and army inspectors said after a preliminary study of the instrument panel that it appeared the pilot, Wayne Williams, had not been able to switch off the ignition before his plane smashed into the sheer stone wall of the peak. They said the huge plane appeared to have been at full cruising speed when it hit the mountain.

3 INJURED AS TRUCK CRASHES INTO SCHOOL BUS

Ruggles Children Seriously Hurt; 13 Other Pupils Bruised, Shaken.

bert and Eugene Young, and a schoolmate, Jean Johnson, all of near Ruggles.

Three St. Stephen residents died in the head-on crash of two cars on U. S. route 224 near Tiffin last night. Thomas Forehand, 78, and Mrs. Alice Wade Clark, 16, died today of injuries received in the collision in which Clarence Wade, 18, was killed instantly.

John Luman, 19, of Melmore, driver of the other car, and Mrs. Mack Wade, 18, were in critical condition from injuries received in the same accident.

Miss Lenore Van Gundia, secretary of the Mansfield Red Cross and George T. Costello, national first aid representative of the Red Cross, who were passing the scene of the accident, administered first aid to the victims while awaiting the arrival of ambulances.

Miss Van Gundia and Costello passed immediately after the crash and helped remove the passengers from the cars. After four ambulances removed the injured persons to Tiffin, they continued their trip to Sycamore.

Albert Young suffered a fractured left leg while Eugene's left leg was almost severed. Authorities at the New London hospital, where the children were taken, said that it might be necessary to amputate the leg.

Jean Johnson received severe lacerations about the head and her condition was reported as only "fair."

Earl Jacobs, New London R. D. 4, driver of the school bus, told Sheriff Hammond that he had stopped to load some children when the accident occurred.

Huff, driver of the lumber truck, said that he saw the bus stop but that when he applied the brakes, his truck loaded with lumber started to skid. Huff said that he turned into a ditch to avoid hitting the bus but that the rear of the truck swung around and crashed into the rear of the bus. The three children who were injured were sitting in the rear seat.

Before Huff or Jacobs could warn him, Herman S. Hartshuh, who had been driving behind Huff, piled his car into the wreckage. He struck the middle of Huff's truck. Mrs. Hartshuh was treated for head and chest injuries.

A tractor-trailer was destroyed by fire early this morning on U. S. Route 42, four miles north of Mansfield, but the driver and a companion escaped injury. Two autos caught fire yesterday on U. S. Route 30 but little damage resulted.

Ira Burton Smith, 60 North Adams street, driver of a tractor-trailer owned by the Frank Williams Transfer company of Mansfield, told state highway patrolman that the fire started while he was driving to Cleveland to pick up a load of furniture.

Smith said that his companion, John Ackles, also of 60 North Adams street, noticed a light between the floorboards of the tractor and that investigation revealed that the trailer was on fire. Smith said that their efforts to disconnect the tractor were unsuccessful and that both burned.

State highway patrolmen reported that autos owned by John D. Brumfield, Mansfield R. D. 4, and William N. Nelson, 115 North Walnut street, caught fire but that the damage to both was slight. Brumfield's fire occurred while he was driving near Mansfield on U. S. Route 30-S. Nelson was at the Charles Mill NYA resident center when his car caught fire.

Two Warren residents, Mrs. Margaret D. Shaffer, about 45, and Asa Mather, 52, were injured fatally in an automobile-truck collision near Newport, Pa.

Other fatalities were:

Cleveland — James Watson, 70, night watchman of suburban Solon and Peter Sestak, 50-year-old bricklayer, both struck by cars.

Columbus—Patrolman John M. McCullough, 30, in collision of his motorcycle and an automobile; Mrs. Mary Shannon, 34, in taxi-truck accident; William Merrill, 80, struck by machine.

Cincinnati — Stewart Williams, 28, in crash of machine against loading platform; unidentified man about 55, hit by car.

Middletown—Edna Hatton, 16, of Germantown, in car-train accident.

Dennison—Milton Bible, 73, of Roscoe, president of Coshocton Carpenters union, at railroad crossing.

Kenton — William W. Holland, 86, retired farmer, in auto-truck wreck.

A. C. Peoples of Marion escaped injury, Joliet, Ill., poplice reported, when an automobile struck his stalled truck near there, killing two occupants of the car.

state said that they were getting rid of the cars as soon as they came into their yards. They complained that the practice of some auto dealers of retaining old cars for sale, was slowing up their program.

"It takes scrap iron to make steel, and scrap iron is more precious than gold," Ohio Commander Floyd R. Hartpence of Westerville told other Legion members in announcing the program.

"Legion surveys have shown there are thousands of tons of scrap iron laying idle in the backyards, basements and barnyards of Ohio, in the form of worn-out lawnmowers, furnace grates, bedsteads, farm tools and countless other articles," he added.

Mansfield officials were asked to have a canvass made in all plants, to release every pound of possible scrap in the city's service yards, to encourage householders to gather up scrap iron, to check the possibility of salvaging street car rails and other heavy scrap from dilipidated buildings, and to help publicize the campaign.

Crafton said that work on the removal of street car rails from Mansfield streets would start tomorrow. It was originally scheduled to start today but was postponed because of weather conditions. Crafton said that scrap iron in the city's service yards would be released "as soon as possible."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, JANUARY 19, 1942.

If this is "the world of tomorrow" it's quite different from what that New York fair led us to expect.

Considering ways to economize on material in men's clothing, it seems that fewer pockets will suffice hereafter.

Harvard complains that Americans are "ignorant of geography"—and it is rather difficult to keep up with daily changes.

Placing Value On Human Life

SUCH a tragedy as that which occurred on a Nevada mountainside last Friday night, when twenty-two persons met death in an airplane crash, has elements of shock and horror that are lacking in accidents which result in only one or two fatalities.

Over the week-end, averages would place the national death toll of motor vehicle accidents at approximately three hundred, yet these are taken so much as a matter of course that they attract little more than localized attention, except in a statistical way.

It was the fact that Carole Lombard, popular screen actress, was among the victims of the plane crash, that made the Friday night disaster one of outstanding interest and regret, yet in their own family circles and home communities the other twenty-one persons who lost their lives also occupied places which cannot be filled.

The same is true in connection with even the commonplace automobile accidents in which death or serious injuries occur, although this is not always kept in mind by the potential victims of careless and reckless driving.

The finality of airplane accidents, in which it is customary for all on board to be killed, serves to dramatize this kind of catastrophe in a way that cannot be done in the case of motor vehicle accidents, else careful driving would become more general.

More Daylight To Be 'Saved'

WHEN "daylight saving" goes into effect all over the country, probably within the next few weeks, the experience of turning the clock ahead an hour will not be new to Mansfielders, many of whom will recall having done the same thing once before.

Up to around World war time Mansfield, and this section of Ohio, was on Central standard time but a re-zoning put the line further west and local clocks and watches were set an hour ahead to Eastern time, with "sun time" remaining at approximately the half-way mark.

Under the new wartime measure, designed to economize on electric power by extending daylight into later evening, Mansfield will be approximately an hour and a half ahead of the sun, which may be rather confusing to dairy farmers and poultry raisers but will make no particular difference to a majority of people who will merely adjust their habits of retiring, arising and working to whatever turn of the clock may seem best for the national war program.

Near the extreme west edge of the Eastern time zone, effect of the advance will be more noticeable in this area than in many other sections, as the sun has a habit of rising according to a schedule of its own instead of being influenced by governmental edict, and it will be just as dark at 6 a. m. under "daylight saving" as it now is at 5 a. m., and mid-June twilight extending rather amazingly toward 10 p. m.—which will place midnight as "shortly after dark" or about time to start out for the evening.

Learn Amount of Income Tax Now

WHILE income tax reports and payments have a March 15 deadline, it is being strongly advised that persons whose 1941 income was above the exempted minimum go to the office of the internal revenue collector in the postoffice building immediately and fill out their income tax blanks, so as to learn the total amount of their obligation and be in readiness to meet the initial payment in March—or the year's total, if they prefer.

It is believed by internal revenue officials that many people do not realize that this year's income tax will be much higher than ever before, and that some have made no regular saving out of wages or salary to pay this tax.

Another advantage in filling out income tax blanks early is that workers in the collector's office are less hurried than during the final couple of weeks and are able to give more attention to assisting taxpayers and explaining various items on the tax blanks, including legitimate deductions.

Place Trust In Native Leaders

GENERALS of this war illustrate the growth of the nationalistic spirit. The Russians are led by Russians, the Germans by Germans, and the French were led by Frenchmen.

This has not always been the case. In Napoleon's time Russia was particularly cosmopolitan in its leaders. Among them were Bennigsen, a Swede; Bagration, a Georgian, and Barclay, a Scot. Only Kutusov, who won the Moscow campaign, was a genuine Slav.

The explanation is perhaps that war in those days was still something of a game, which adventurers might play at their will, wandering from nation to nation. Our own John Paul Jones, for example, became an admiral in the Russian navy.

Now war is a serious business. When the hearthstone is at stake, only true sons of the soil are trusted as defenders.

South Becoming Sanitation-Conscious

THE "DEEP SOUTH" has sometimes been accused of not being so strict about sanitation as northern regions. However that may be, there is no question that sanitary cleanliness is more necessary in warm climates than in cold. Southern states lately have grown more insistent about such matters. As a result Florida is now boasting about its sanitary standards.

The more of such boasting there is around the whole country, the better it will be. The rise of human civilization has been a story of better sanitation from age to age in food and living. Not only is cleanliness next to godliness, but it is the best recipe for healthful and prolonged life.

In the absence of word to the contrary it may be assumed that the Dionne quintuplets are getting along nicely—even if they have lost their Page 1 standing.

. Among other things to remember is March 15.

MOTHER HUBBARD — REVISED VERSION

May End Duplicated Train Service

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — In a few months railroad travelers will have very little choice about the roads on which they propose to ride. All duplication possible is to be avoided. The explanation is that Joseph B. Eastman of the interstate commerce commission, will be given the power to accomplish what he has been advocating for years in the way of railroad economies.

So Eastman has taken his old plans out of the pigeonholes, dusted them off, brought them up to date, and pretty soon there will be government orders to carry them out.

There is just one possibility that all this may not come to pass. The railroad brotherhoods know all about Eastman's plans, and they don't like anything about them. In fact they have been so strong until recently that all such plans were regarded as hopeless. Best opinion here, however, is that the opposition of the brotherhoods will not be sufficient, in the face of war needs for conservation of vital materials and skilled labor.

ORIGINALLY Eastman labored to straighten out the financial condition of the railroads. Hard hit by bus, truck and passenger car competition the one big industry of the country for which the administration felt a profound sympathy in its financial distress was showing nothing but red ink, save in a few bright spots.

So Eastman began to work out his plans. But as soon as the brotherhoods found out what they were like there was a storm. The last possible compromise they would consider was that no railroad was to be permitted to discharge any man as a result! As the pay envelopes are the big factors in any such economy, this proved pretty nearly insurmountable.

In those good old days of peace, however, there was another objection. The individual railroads, with the incurable optimism based on past performances, even if unjustified by the outlook, did not want to give up the battle with their competitors. War needs will sweep that aside far more easily than the objections of the brotherhoods can be brushed away.

BACK in World war No. 1 the government took over the railroads. That is not desired now by anybody in particular, least of all a majority of the administration officials. But the threat is there. The possibility might easily turn into a certainty unless sufficient economies are worked out by the railroads voluntarily or in cooperation.

In the days of government operation, under William G. McAdoo, Baltimore & Ohio railroad trains to New York were operated into the city via the Pennsylvania railroad company tunnel, and hence used the Pennsylvania station. Eastman's present ideas would go further than that. He would eliminate all B. & O. express trains between New York and Washington, turning all the passenger business on this vital 226 miles of track over to the Pennsylvania, and utilizing the B. & O. line for freight, plus a few necessary local trains.

Another idea in the batch is to discontinue Pennsylvania passenger trains from Washington to the west, permitting the B. & O. to take over, for instance, the service from Washington to Chicago.

Between various other cities where there is an absurd competitive condition, as for instance between St. Louis and Chicago, and between Chicago and the Twin Cities, some plans would be worked out which would eliminate competition between trains running at about the same time, perhaps even going to the length of having ALL the passenger service between certain points carried by one railroad, with the others released for exclusive freight business.

Health and Diet

So You "Have a Cold"—Well, What of It!

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

EVERY year about this time somebody relieves me of the onus of expressing my own opinion about the treatment of the common cold.

I have found from experience, that my opinion about the cold is not popular. I do not believe that the common cold can be prevented or cured. I do not believe that it is very serious, or that it often runs into anything. I do not believe the economic loss that is caused by the common cold is very serious. The fact that a few million people every week don't get to work on account of the common cold doesn't seem to me to have slowed up American business very much.

100,000,000 Colds

So my gospel has always been that a cold is nice. You can go to bed. You can feel sorry for yourself, have the family wait on you, snooze, and have no responsibilities. According to Dr. David Perlowe, the best thing to do anyway is to go to bed for 24 hours, take two warm drinks and three blankets. So if you go to bed with your cold, you are doing the most thoroughly scientific thing.

It is estimated that there are one hundred million colds caught in the United States in the months of January, February and March.

According to Dr. Polowe, to prevent further complications, "hit the hay as soon as a cold starts, and stay there until you're feeling tops again. The third day of the sneezekrieg is the most dangerous. You carry billions of bacteria in your nose and throat. Normally, they are harmless, but about the third day of your cold, when your resistance is low, these bacteria go exploring in your sinuses, ears and lungs.

Stay In Bed

"If you've stayed in bed, you've helped to resist these invaders and ward off such serious complications as sinusitis, mastoiditis or pneumonia."

Only six per cent of us, according to Dr. Polowe, go through the winter without catching cold. If you want to get into that group, wear sensible clothes, keep your feet warm, your body dry, sleep long, avoid extreme fatigue and worry, and eat well.

Here are a few things you can do to keep from spreading your cold:

Cough and sneeze into handy squares of gauze or tissue that you can fling into the nearest furnace at your convenience. A free-for-all sneeze will carry the cold virus a distince of six to ten feet. Wash your hands frequently, especially before eating. Insist on separate eating utensils. As soon as you can, go to bed, take some hot drinks, cover yourself well with blankets. If you're not okay in 24 hours, call your doctor.

Propose More Compensation for Jobless During Plant Conversion

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—There is good news in store for the thousands of workers thrown temporarily out of jobs because of shutdowns arising out of the all-out war production program.

Under a plan submitted to the president by OPM Associate Director Sidney Hillman and Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt, unemployment compensation benefits would be considerably increased for these jobless.

This is what Hillman and McNutt proposed:

The present period of benefit payments to be increased from 13 to 26 weeks.

The percentage of a worker's pay paid him while idle to be boosted from 50 to 60 per cent.

The existing weekly maximum he can receive as jobless insurance to be raised to $24.

Under the Hillman-McNutt plan these liberalized benefits would operate for this year only. By 1943 it is expected that all change-overs to war production will have been completed and that every person capable and willing to work will have no trouble getting a job.

The president has indicated his approval of the Hillman-McNutt plan and the necessary steps to put it into effect will be taken shortly.

Note—Hillman, original author of the plan, also proposed to the president that it be revived immediately after the war to cushion the re-conversion of industry to peace production.

Nelson's Appointment.

DONALD NELSON'S selection as war production czar was the best kept secret in Washington in many years.

In all of the capital there was only one man who knew that the able, hard-working OPM priorities chief was to be named to the key production post. That man was the man who picked Nelson—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

No one had the slightest inkling about the matter, including Nelson. He had long favored a single production executive, but in recent months had not been mentioned in the list of possibilities for the job. Other more prominent names were touted—Secretaries Jesse Jones and Henry Morgenthau, Justices Byrnes and Douglas, Milo Perkins, executive director of the Economic Warfare Board. Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson.

Months ago, during the old National Defense Commission, Nelson, then chief of purchasing, had been talked of as top choice for head of the defense program. But after that, while in the forefront, he was not one of the "big" names.

Not until he went to the White House with Vice President Wallace, following a hurried telephone call several hours before, did Nelson learn that he was the man of destiny.

Chief credit for "selling" Nelson to the president belongs to Wallace, although like Nelson he didn't know until the White House conference how successful his salesmanship had been. Wallace became greatly impressed with Nelson's quiet effectiveness during their work together on SPAB, of which Wallace was chairman and Nelson executive director.

On a number of occasion, Wallace voiced high praise of Nelson to the president. These views stuck with the president and when he finally decided to put war production in the hands of a single executive, Nelson was the choice over all the other posibilities.

Once he made up his mind, the president acted fast. The reason for this was to avoid word of his decision leaking out, and to block the friends of other aspirants starting undercover pressure drives for them.

The president gave Nelson only one piece of advice.

"Don," he said, "be tough. This is a tough job and you will have to be tough to make a go of it."

Note—Quipped an OPM big shot the day after Nelson's appointment, "I guess we're 'PM' now instead of OPM."

Merry-Go-Round.

GANSON PURCELL, brainy young career man whom the president a year ago elevated to a place on the Securities and Exchange Commission, will succeed to the chairmanship of the agency when incumbent Edward Eicher goes on the federal bench. Robert O'Brien, another crack young career man who is head of the SEC's utilities division, will be appointed to Eicher's seat as a member of the commission. Piqued at Purcell's elevation to the chairmanship, veteran Commissioner Robert Healy has resigned and is looking for a job outside the government. . . . A number of the employes at the White Sulphur Springs hotel, where German diplomats are being "entertained" by the government, are of German descent. . . . Dave Robertson of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen has urged members of his union to buy defense bonds with the back pay they will receive for September, October and November. . . . Vice President Wallace has already tackled one problem which a lot of Americans are thinking about—peace after the war. An article by Wallace in the "Atlantic Monthly," "Foundations of Peace," is worth reading.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—If state, county and local police in this country aren't prepared for the national emergency whether it's simply convoying motorized troop movements through their respective bailiwicks or handling an all-out air raid and gas attack, it won't be because they haven't already been told.

No sooner had the United States gotten into World War II, than the Federal Bureau of Investigation jumped into print with its "FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin" with everything it had been able to learn from first-hand observation of the activities and responsibilities of police in bomb-pocked England.

SOME of this information, through the national and local office of civilian defense, has already been made public, but much of it hasn't and some that hasn't is of more than passing interest.

For example, sandbagging has always been considered a pretty efficient defense precaution. The FBI points out that it is only so temporarily. Bags rot, the sand washes out, the protective wall collapses. Besides, it has been found in London that they become ideal homes for a legion of rats.

More permanent and far more satisfactory in the matter of protection are offset, brick walls, 14-inches thick, constructed so as to form a maze around the protected area. These "blast walls," as they are called, now are being used on many important police stations and other buildings in England.

BAFFLE board and steel or steel-faced shutters, with ventilating arrangements, are far more effective for ground floor windows and doors of public buildings that have to be used 24 hours a day (such as police stations) than any other blackout arrangements.

Every police force should have a number of trained reserves equaling at least 30 per cent of its total personnel. All public buildings in constant use should have hurricane oil lamps in case the usual electrical sources are interrupted.

No police force should worry about the organization of an armed home guard. Such home guards in England are equipped with rifles which, because of their long barrels, are not capable of concealment, and thus do not fall under the "concealed weapons" laws.

IN ENGLAND, every person in the land has had to register, is subject to challenge by police, and upon such challenge must present his identification. Such a drastic measure has not yet been considered in this country.

A Farmer's Diary

Youth and Age

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

AN OLD man has a grandson who helps him with the chores. Often I have seen them walk together in the fields or along the road. The grandfather will soon be 80 and the young man one year out of high school. I have observed often that they enjoy each other's company. The stooped, grayhaired man points out with slender trembling hands the things he believes of interest, and the boy appears impressed and enthusiastic.

One day I overtook the boy and invited him to ride with me. Gladly he accepted. "Where do you live?" I wondered.

"Three miles west of here," he said. "I finished high school in the next county, last spring a year and I've been helping dad on the farm ever since, and tending grandpa's chores, morning and evening.

"You see," he said, "grandpa's getting old. He needs someone to be with him around the stock, and to help him milkin'. Grandma always makes a good supper for us and she's a good cook—makes the best pies you ever ate, and the swellest honey biscuits.

"They're two wonderful old people, but poor grandad has some funny notions. He's keepin' that team for me to "work with some day." He don't believe in tractors—says they don't have feelin's and they don't make manure. He wants to repair the old barn and build a straw shed so I'll have more room. I agree, of course, so's not to disappoint 'im. But I'll never do things his way—he's behind the times."

Soon afterward I had the pleasure of a few words with the old grandfather, and hauled him a half mile to his cozy home. "That grandson of ours, Charley, does a lot of work around the place. In a few years he'll have the farm. He's honest and knows how to work. He's studied agriculture and is full of new ideas. I've tried to tell him how he oughta farm the place after I'm gone—because I reckoned 'twould make us better acquainted, and give him a mite more balance in his notions. He listens mighty well—but I know he don't agree with me. Fact is, I wouldn't want him to. Things have to keep goin' ahead, and I'm 'bout done. He'll take good care of my team, though—he won't let things run down. I get a lot of satisfaction out o' knowin' he's the kind of boy that'll bear a lot to keep an old man happy."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHEN TO LEAD TRUMPS

If you have won a defensive trick against a suit contract, the question of whether or not to lead trumps depends on what you have heard, what has already happened on the trick or tricks so far played, and what you see in the dummy. The last is usually the most important of these elements. If the dummy has only two or three trumps, sometimes when it has four, and if there is a void suit or singleton where those trumps are likely to be useable for ruffing, a trump lead is to be considered. If there are plenty of trumps in the dummy, so that trump leads cannot take them out, and especially if there is a set-up or almost set-up side suit, you don't want to lead trumps.

	♠ Q 7 ♥ A 9 7 5 2 ♦ K ♣ A K J 6 5
♠ 3 ♥ Q J 8 4 ♦ 10 8 7 3 ♣ 10 8 7 3	N. W. E. S.	♠ 10 9 8 6 4 ♥ K 6 3 ♦ A Q 9 ♣ Q 4
	♠ A K J 5 2 ♥ 10 ♦ 10 8 7 6 4 ♣ 9 2

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♥
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	2 ♦	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	3 ♥
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

This was the deal which came at the most dramatic possible moment for one of its players in the national championships at Richmond, Va. The fateful war news of Dec. 7 had just come over the radio when Oswald Jacoby and his partner, B. Jay Becker, bid this deal in the North-South seats. Immediately after getting a top score on it, Mr. Jacoby rushed away to Washington to get back at his work in the Office of Production Management.

It illustrated most clearly the importance of a defender leading trumps at the right time. The heart Q was won with the dummy's A and the diamond K called. After East won this, he decided to cash his heart K, when he should have returned a spade. As a consequence, ten tricks were easy for the declarer—two by ruffs of diamonds, two ruffs of hearts and three high trumps in the closed hand, the heart A and two top clubs.

At tables where trumps were led once by the defense, 4-Spades got set. Where a trump was led at the outset and another after the diamond A won, it was set two tricks, as no separate tricks at all were picked off by the dummy's two trumps.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ J 10 5 ♥ K 7 3 2 ♦ 3 2 ♣ A J 8 3
♠ Q 8 3 ♥ Q 8 6 4 ♦ A J 7 ♣ 10 7 5	N. W. E. S.	♠ A 7 4 2 ♥ 10 9 5 ♦ 9 6 5 ♣ K Q 6
	♠ K 9 6 ♥ A J ♦ K Q 10 8 4 ♣ 9 4 2

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If the bidding here is only 1-Diamond by South, 1-No Trump by North and 2-Diamonds by South, what simple clear-cut principle should guide West in selecting the correct lead?

High Style Fashions, Fancy Work

The smartest shirtwaister of the season is the easiest to make, says Marian Martin of her new Pattern, 9969! Especially suited to a striped fabric but lovely in plain material too, this frock features the new "cross-patch" pockets and square-cornered collar. The lowered shoulder seams create a pretty bias yoke effect at the front, and the gathers below them give fullness to the bodice. The two central skirt panels are bias—isn't the effect interesting? It is slimming on larger figures. A back cut in two sections, a straight belt, and either short, three-quarter or long sleeves complete this attractive design. . . . A contrast collar and pockets are optional too.

Pattern 9969 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 4 yards 35 inch.

Send fifteen cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for this Marian Martin Pattern. Be sure to write plainly your Size, Name, Address and Style Number.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Jan. 20.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

Excellent auguries are found in this day's astral forecast, with many affairs moving along at a lively pace and to desired culminations, this following the breaking away from old static or crystallized conditions. Nevertheless there is likely to be an urge to undertake over-ambitious or speculative enterprises which may prove unprofitable and affect the standing and credit, unless much vigilance, restraint, sound judgment and keen acumen are shown.

Those whose birthday it is may have excellent opening for important projects and ambitious programs if they bring to bear on all such propositions well-organized plans, attention to details, sober judgment as well as much sagacity, since all major programs may be beset by dangers of imposition, false promises, over-expansive ideas, as well as too generous and unwarranted use of funds.

A child born on this day while having sound judgment and character yet may possess expansive, over-enthusiastic and generous tendencies, as well as some peculiar or erratic qualities, relying on hunches to its detriment.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Astonishment and curious questioning flashed into Philip Veritzen's eyes at my query, and the faces of his wife and stepdaughter reflected his surprise. But they are too poised and well-bred to ask for information not volunteered to them, and Philip's answer was prompt.

"I know where he is," he said. "He's in one of the hotel apartments, where I put him last night with instructions to stay in it and have his meals sent up to him, until time to go to the theater tonight."

He paused with a slow, reminiscent grin, then went on.

"To tell all of the truth, he didn't need the instructions. The one thing he wanted was a cave into which he could burrow and be safe from visitors, and there is no more effective and comfortable hiding place than a hotel room.

Redfield's Cowardice.

"Physical courage is not Redfield's strong point, except on the stage," he went on, and the grin touching his lips made me suddenly aware that Philip Veritzen had no more liking or respect for the leading man in his production than the rest of us had. But his passion for the theater, his pride in his productions, his peculiar standards, which put perfection in acting above all other considerations, would make him keep Redfield in his role, no matter what personal considerations were involved.

I doubted whether even knowledge of Redfield's cruel slur against Noel, which had roused Mary to such fury and which Veritzen had not heard, would affect that decision. But I knew the great producer's patriotism, his love for the country which has rewarded him so richly, are so great that if he should guess what we surmised about Stephen Redfield's subversive activities, the actor's relations with his producer would be severed immediately.

Watch Must Continue.

My father, of course, could and would prevent that happening prematurely. He wished to keep Redfield under supervision, unsuspecting that he was being watched, at least until Mary should get a line on the desperadoes with whom he was associated. But I knew that he would wish to acquaint Veritzen with the facts himself, so I resolved to guard my tongue with great care, lest I let slip something which would make the great producer suspect the real state of things before we were ready to reveal it.

"Would you like to see him right away?" Mr. Veritzen asked. "If so, I can bring him down here, or you can go up there."

"I think I'll go up there," I said, adding with a laugh that I tried to make nonchalant, "you know what my father is. For some unknown reason of his own he wants to talk to a certain actor—I do not even know his name—and he wants to know something about the man beforehand. He has heard that Steve knows him quite well. I believe that they played in the same production or belong to the same club—my father was quite vague about details—but at any rate he has asked me to put two or three questions to Steve about the man and get his answers."

"He doesn't suspect the man—or Steve—of anything which—" he began quickly, but I interrupted him as swiftly.

"Oh dear, no." I said. "He simply wants some routine information which the man is in a position to give him, and you know father. He takes infinite pains to know everything possible about anybody whom he contacts for information."

I felt as though a ghostly Sapphira were waving me mocking commendation, but Philip Veritzen accepted my tarradiddle at its face value.

Concocts a Reason.

"Yes I know," he said, "and I'll call him at once. I doubt if he'd talk to anybody else. Indeed he is not supposed to be in the hotel at all. When I get him, would you like to talk to him?"

"Yes, but let me concoct an excuse first," I said, sparring for time. "I do not wish to tell him about my father at first."

"Probably frighten him into a fit," Philip Veritzen said maliciously.

"Oh, I have it," I said. "He asked me a question last night—something about the accuracy of some costumes in a Broadway production—and I was not prepared to answer him correctly. But my memory has been functioning since, and I now can answer his question. I'll tell him that."

"Very well," Mr. Veritzen said, picking up the receiver. "I'll get him on the phone for you immediately."

CHAPTER XII

"Linda is visiting me," Diane said.

Brenda's dark eyes were half-closed, and she was swaying a little on her feet. Looking at her Linda experienced again the strange distrust this sleek, beautiful girl aroused in her.

"Congratulations, Mrs. Coleman," she said hesitantly. "I hope you'll be very happy."

"Thank you," Brenda replied without glancing at her. She was smiling wickedly at Diane. "You must come and visit Jerry and me sometime when you're in town."

"Oh, but I—" Linda started to explain her new plans, but Diane broke into the conversation. "Another time, Linda," she said impatiently. "It's getting late and Greg is anxious to leave."

As they walked across the room, Linda looked back over her shoulder at the bride. Brenda had not moved. She was watching them, smiling a strange, secret smile . . .

Riding back to the apartment, Linda slipped one hand through Greg's arm, feeling a thrill of satisfaction at his nearness. Diane was strangely quiet, her eyes fixed steadily on the windshield. She answered Linda's questions in monosyllables.

"What's the matter, Diane?" Linda asked at length. "Aren't you feeling well?"

"Of course. I'm just tired, I guess."

Dreamily, Linda murmured, "It was a lovely reception, but I felt so sorry for Steve Baridon. I wonder why Mary wasn't there?"

"Mary and Brenda aren't speaking now," Diane returned. "Mary is devoted to her brother, and she blames Brenda for everything that has happened to him."

"Everything that has happened? What do you mean?"

Diane shrugged, carelessly. "Steve had the idea he would write a book and make so much money from it that Brenda would stick with him after all. He quit his job and started writing in earnest, but in the meantime Brenda met Jerry and broke her engagement. That's about all there is to tell. Steve's been so broken up over the whole mess that he hasn't written another word. His career seems to have gone smash and he doesn't give a darn what happens to him."

Linda shivered. "How dreadful I can't imagine how he could have so little pride that he would go around telling everyone he had been jilted."

"It's just that he's lost all confidence in himself," Diane said. "He needs a good lecture, but he won't listen to anyone. Mary is heartbroken. Her mother died when Mary was born, and since her father is away most of the time Steve has been her whole family."

* * *

The car stopped before the apartment house. Diane jumped out. Standing on the sidewalk she said, "I'll run upstairs. You two must have a lot to talk about."

When she had entered the lobby, Linda said eagerly, "I have so much to say, Greg. But—first will you drive to our parking spot overlooking the lake?"

Greg frowned, but obligingly started the engine and headed for the place they had sat during their first night together.

Linda felt a rosy glow of contentment. "Diane is a grand person to understand things."

"Understand?" Greg looked at her quickly. "What do you mean?"

"I mean—about us," Linda said uncertainly, because Greg's quick look had seemed to demand an explanation, soon she was pouring out the story of her parents' distrust, of the gossip in Prairievale and Kyle's insistence that she forget Greg.

"I couldn't stand it any longer," Linda said huskily, "so I packed up and left without saying goodbye."

"But what will you do in Chicago?" Greg was perplexed "Where will you stay?" He parked the car on the small knoll overlooking the lake. In the late November moonlight it appeared cold and sullen. Linda shivered and moved closer to Greg. He was tinkering with the radio, and presently soft strains floated through the car.

"I'll stay with Diane," Linda answered. "She invited me to visit her when I was here before."

Greg looked at her. "But you can't—" He broke off suddenly and Linda was struck by the strange, savage way he had spoken, almost as though she were not wanted.

"Doesn't — doesn't Diane like me?" Pitifully.

Greg made an impatient gesture. "Of course, Linda. It's just that—well, what will you do for money?"

"I'll get a job," she assured him, happily.

"Jobs don't grow on trees," Greg was blunt.

Linda felt hurt by his attitude. A new thought struck her and she whispered plaintively, "You are glad to see me, aren't you Greg? I wanted it to be a nice surprise."

Greg hesitated for a moment, before he said casually, "Of course I'm glad, but I wonder if it was wise. If I'm responsible for anything—"

"You're responsible for a good many things." Linda brushed his cheek with her lips. "All of them nice. You're responsible for making me realize how drab my life really was—for keeping me from making the dreadful mistake of marrying a man I didn't love."

Greg held her in his arms. Tenderly. "I hope," he said thickly, "that you won't be—well, too disappointed in me, Linda."

Linda was projecting before the mirror late the following afternoon when Diane returned from her studio. Exhausted by a week of continuous worry, topped by a sleepless train-ride to Chicago, she had slept until noon and been served a combination breakfast and lunch in bed.

She had written a brief note to her parents, telling them of her arrival, the rest of the afternoon had been spent in experimenting with new hair-do's and make-up effects, in order that Greg would be proud of her.

When Diane walked into the bedroom she found Linda, clad in the white and silver dress she had worn that night several weeks ago when she first met Greg.

"Hello, Diane," she greeted the artist, happily. "I just donned my finery for an evening with Greg. He promised to take me sightseeing, and I want to look my best. Is everything all right?"

Diane did not move. Her fingers dug into her palms, hard.

"I—I have something to tell you," she said, ignoring the query. Her voice was strange to her own ears.

Linda was spraying scent on a filmy handkerchief, and without looking up she laughed lightly. "Is it the hair-do? I had a dreadful time getting the top curls combed out, so don't hesitate to tell me the truth."

Diane winced. All afternoon she had been framing this speech, going over it in her mind; and now Linda was unaware of the urgency in her voice, or of her tense face.

"Linda, look at me!" she commanded.

Linda glanced up casually, and then, catching a glimpse of Diane's white, set face she cried, "What is it? . . . Is it Greg?"

Diane nodded.

"He's been hurt!" Linda was frantic. "That's what you're trying to say. Something has happened to Greg!"

"No, no! He's all right!" Diane said hastily. "But—well, he's not coming here tonight. He's never coming here again. Greg has . . . gone!"

For a moment Linda was unable to believe her own ears. "Greg gone?" she whispered. "I—I don't understand, Diane. Where has he gone? Why?"

Diane gripped her hands together. The words she had planned so carefully were forgotten now. She was conscious of Linda's puzzled, stricken eyes. Her waning color. "Please try to follow me, Linda. Greg has gone away for awhile. He—he doesn't want to see you again."

"Doesn't . . . want to see . . ." Linda broke off. Dazedly she looked at her hands, touched her misty dress. Pathetically she whispered, "I don't know what you mean. I came to Chicago to be with him. Why—why did he go away?"

All her life Diane would remember the way Linda looked in the moment she learned the truth. Her face was white.

"Greg has gone," Diane uttered harshly, "because you love him and he wants to escape from you and your love."

Diane went on hurriedly. "He doesn't condemn you. He blames himself for allowing you to misunderstand. To Greg it was merely a flirtation. When he stopped over in Prairievale to see you, he never dreamed you'd take him so seriously that you would break your engagement; and when you came to Chicago and he learned that you expected eventually to marry him, Greg didn't have the nerve to tell you the truth."

Slowly, Linda sank onto a bench, her eyes fixed dully on nothingness. "But—" she said finally, "why did he send you to tell me? Why do you know so much about it?"

Diane took a long breath. It had taken courage to tell the first news. This required even more determination. "That," she said, "is the rest of a very sordid story You see, it has been a—an understanding for the last two years that Greg and I—well, that we would someday be married."

Linda started, color rising swiftly in her face, but Diane went on gently:

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Managers committee of the Ohio Conference will meet in Mansfield next Sunday to consider the spring sports program of colleges holding membership in the conference.

Revision of college terms, caused by educational speed-up resulting from the war, already has knocked spring sports schedules in the head, and it wouldn't be surprising if the conference decides to drop all championship meets and tournaments.

Rudy Kutler, Kenyon athletic director, and chairman of the managers' committee, realizes this possibility, and has called the Mansfield meeting.

Kenyon has decided upon an early May commencement this spring, instead of mid-June, which automatically knocks the Lords out of practically all spring sports competition.

The Ohio conference tennis tournament, nearly always held on Kenyon's hard-surface courts, already has been turned back to the conference. And it isn't likely there will be any track or baseball in the spring plans at Gambier.

Announcement of the meeting doesn't mention that hug-a-boo problem, use of freshmen athletes on varsity teams. But you can bet it will be discussed, formally or informally.

* * *

One reason why I like writing sports is the fact that seldom is it necessary to say anything detrimental about the persons whose names appear on the sport pages.

So it wasn't with any great feeling of glee that I had to use the story yesterday about the coach at Ontario announcing the dismissal from his basketball squad of two lettermen.

But it was a matter of news, important not only in Ontario but to the entire county league. And needs must be printed.

* * *

One Ontario girl called me up yesterday to inform me that the boys weren't kicked off the team. They quit.

In any event the dislike between the players and coach appears to be mutual. Too bad they couldn't have gotten together and ironed out their differences a long time ago. I'm sure everyone in Ontario would have been happier, including the coach and players.

* * *

And without these distasteful jobs to do,
The old Podger would be happier too.

Nelson Wins In California

Takes West Coast Golf Match After 10 Years.

By RUSSELL NEWLAND

OAKLAND, Calif. —(AP)— He took ten years to do it, but Byron Nelson finally won a California tournament.

The shot specialist from Toledo had acknowledged the plaudits given a national open and P.G.A. champion, but for the first time since he turned professional in 1932 he came up yesterday with the major prize in a California tournament.

* * *

He won the 72-hole Oakland open with a par-battering 274. There wasn't the shadow of a doubt as to who the best man was this time. Nelson led from start to finish.

* * *

After a three under par in the opening round, a stroke better than any rival, he added three successive 69's to finish five shots ahead of the field. The only other player to subdue par 35-35—70 for the Sequoyah course over the four rounds was an amateur, John Dawson of Hollywood, who turned out a neat 279.

Dawson, of course, could not participate in the money awards, such as Nelson, who pocketed $1,000. Dawson received a defense bond.

Except for a few errors in the last nine holes of the tournament, Nelson played some of the finest golf of his spectacular career. He hit the ball squarely on the nose and down the fairways most of the time.

* * *

Definitely at the peak of his game, Nelson will be one of the hot favorites in the San Francisco 72-hole open starting next Thursday.

Trailing Nelson in the money winning division were Lawson Little, San Francisco, and Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., tied at 280. Each collected $650.

Stroke behind were the pre-tournament favorite, Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., Lloyd Mangrum of Monterey Park, Calif., and Willie Goggin, White Plains, N. Y. They deadlocked at 281 and each received $375.

* * *

The toughest blow of all landed on Leonard Dodson of Kansas City, Mo. He won the tournament a year ago in a playoff but failed this time to land among the money winners.

N.C.O. Team Hits Two 1000 Games

Donley Recreation keglers rolled a 2974 total and games of 1005-954-1015 yesterday in blanking Mansfield Liederkranz in an N. C. O. league match at Bucyrus. Shelley rolled 606 and Baker 605 for the winners.

Mansfield Eagles won only one game out of six in league competition, but that game, at Findlay, saw them turning in a 1001 score. In this match the Eagles dropped a 1-2 decision to Lee's Grill, while they were blanked 3-0 by Avalon Nite club at Port Clinton.

180 FILLIES ENTERED

CHICAGO —(INS)— One hundred and 80 fillies have been entered for the 14th running of the $1,000 added Lassie stake for 2-year-olds at Arlington park next summer, John D. Jackson, general manager at Arlington, announced today.

PLAYER PURCHASED

DALLAS —(AP)— The Dallas Rebels of the Texas league have purchased Arnold Carol Traxler, 23-year-old outfielders, from the New York Yankees. Last season hep layed with the Augusta, Ga., team in the South Atlantic league.

RED CROSS NETS 2 G'S FROM GOLF EXHIBITION

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—(AP)—The American Red Cross netted more than $2,000 Sunday from a four-ball exhibition golf match featuring Craig Wood, Frank Walsh, Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour.

The players passed their hats at the end of nine holes, collected $1,360 in cash from spectators. Referee Al Jolson auctioned off a number of balls with which birdies were scored at $5 to $45 each.

Wood and Walsh defeated Sarazen and Armour, 5 and 4.

Try To Slate Lightweights

Speculate on Robinson, Cochrane Title Bout.

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK—(INS)—Convinced they had discovered a "Light Weight Joe Louis" in Sugar Ray Robinson, the shivering citizens of Jacobs Beach put aside their racing forms long enough today to speculate on just what chance the Harlem hot shot has of getting a crack at Freddie (Red) Cochrane's world's welterweight championship.

Mark well, they did not speculate on Ray's chances against Cochrane—only his chance of getting into the same ring with him.

We are sorry to inform the Robinson rooters that the Beachcombers held out little hope of Cochrane ever meeting Ray. The opinion was that Freddie is very happy in the Naval reserve at Newport, R. I. and that it would take practically a government subpoena to get him to fight the thunder-punching colored boy.

Ray, who is not yet 21, looked so positively devastating in flattening Fritzie Zivic at the Garden last Friday night, no man in his right mind would want to tangle with him. By his victory Sugar Ray, as he is called by his buddies, supposedly clinched a title fight with Cochrane for Feb. 20, the proceeds to go to the President's infantile paralysis fund.

Asked about the rumors that the fight might not come off Promoter Mike Jacobs said: "Well, I made the match and I haven't been told anything different about it so I guess it's on. Cochrane hasn't defended his title in the regulation six months, in fact he hasn't defended it at all as far as I can discover. If he fails to go through with this fight the matter will be turned over to the boxing commission.

Should, for any reason, Cochrane be unable to go through with the Feb. 20 date Curt Horrman, Robinson's manager, will appeal to the commission to vacate Red's 147 pound crown and designate Ray the champion.

* * *

Because other service fighters have been released to fight there is little doubt Cochrane could not be accorded the same privilege, particularly for a charity show, if he so desired.

Supplies, Sohioans Matched In 'A' Loop Cage Battle

Tonight at 7:00 at Mansfield Senior high school, the City "A" basketball league will resume play with another three-game program.

* * *

The feature game would be hard to decide upon, as all teams in the league are so closely matched that no outstanding team has been able to make a runaway of the race.

* * *

The first game on the program brings together the two teams in first place, the Athletic Supply tangling with the Blue Goose Sohionas. The Sohioans boast a triumph over Yuncker Sports in the second half race, while the Supplies boast of a victory over the previously undefeated Westinghouse Electrics and also a victory over the Ohio Public Service.

The Supplies, with Bruce McGinty, one of the leading scorers of the league, are slight favorites, but the Sohioans are one of the best balanced teams in the league, and are primed for battle.

The second game brings together the City News, the surprise victors over Yuncker Sports last week, and the Ohio Public Service. This game should really develop into a battle well worth seeing. Both teams have improved rapidly since the beginning of the season and since the loser of this game will probably be out of all title consideration, this should give an extra incentive to a real, rip-roaring battle.

The third game finds the Westinghouse Electrics, on the rebound after last week's defeat by Athletic Supply, favored to trim the Yuncker Sports, who have dropped both of their second round games. Westinghouse with Howard Poole and Mac McCartey showing the way, will attempt to stay in striking distance of the Athletic Supply, in case the Supplies should run against a snag in their chase after the second half flag. The Sports, while practically out of title consideration have everything to gain and nothing to lose, so they will be shooting the works.

Dempsey Still Likes Army

Mauler Will Serve Navy, But Dislikes the Water.

CHICAGO —(INS)— Jack Dempsey, looking physically fit and showing his former zip despite his 46 years, was in Chicago today, still trying to sell himself to the army.

* * *

The former heavyweight champion officiated at the opening of the rodeo at the International Amphitheater, but his thoughts constantly drifted toward the war and the army. He said:

"I could join the navy, you know, but I don't like boats and I don't like water. I'll serve Uncle Sas anywhere he wants me, but I'm still trying to join the army.

"The war department told me I'm too old, but do I look like I'm in bad shape? I'm in perfect trim now, and I'm going to get in the army somehow."

Successor Named For Alan Holman

LANCASTER, Pa. —(AP)— Richard Barker, football and wrestling coach of Cornell college at Mt. Vernon, Ia., has been named football coach at Franklin and Marshall college.

* * *

He succeeds Alan M. Holman, whose resignation was announced Friday.

* * *

Barker conferred yesterday with Dr. Charles Mayser, F. and M. director of athletics, and Theodore Distler, F. and M. president. The Iowan is a former pupil of Dr. Mayser who once coached wrestling in Iowa.

Details of the contract were not announced.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—After seeing what has happened to the first ten, we're not surprised that the tennis bosses plan to put in extra effort to develop young players . . . With two top-rankers in the pros, two listening for offers, one in the navy and three under minor penalties because of last year's expense accounts, the guys who run the big tournaments probably are wondering where the next drawing card will come from . . . We still think open tournaments would simplify the matter by giving the kids who need extra expense money the chance to earn it honestly.

The story that the National leaguers were considering the Phillies' demand for a loan at that "secret" meeting doesn't sound quite right. The Phils have been able to sell players right along for the kind of dough the Browns are trying to borrow and they still have some to sell if they're that hard up.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

MONDAY MATINEE

Babe Ruth is back home from the hospital but isn't allowed to go out yet . . . Don't count on seeing Ray Robinson lift the welter-weight title from Red Cochrane Feb. 20. Before Friday's fight, Manager Willie Gilzenberg showed Mike Jacobs a letter from Fred A. Huggins, Cochrane's boss at the Newport naval station, saying Red couldn't be spared for the five weeks he wants for training. Others at the station aren't even allowed to go home overnight.

Frank Cuhel, whom you may have heard broadcasting war news from Java, is the Iowa athlete who ran second in the 400 meters hurdles at the 1928 Olympics.

WINS SENIOR TITLE

FT. MYERS, Fla.—(AP)—Eddie Williams of Chicago scored his second successive 69 to win the Professional Golfers' association senior championship yesterday with a 36-hole total of 138.

BABE RUTH BACK HOME AFTER HOSPITAL TRIP

NEW YORK — (INS) — Babe Ruth was back home today in his Riverside Drive apartment, recovering from the illness that sent him to the hospital two weeks ago. The former Yankee slugger arrived home several days ago, it was said. The Babe now is waiting word from Hollywood on when the studio that is to film the life of Lou Gehrig wants him to report. Ruth will play himself in the Gehrig film.

DiMag Waits For Contract

Yankee To Receive Top Diamond Salary For Year.

NEW YORK — (U.P.) — A few weeks from today a dark-eyed young man will take a pen from a bushy-browed old gentleman and sign his name to a baseball contract that will give him the biggest player income in the game.

The young man will be Joe DiMaggio and the old gent will be President Ed Barrow of the New York Yankees and if the task proves unusually difficult the American league club can thank the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers association which has designated the black-haired Italian from San Francisco as the "player of the year for 1941." It was the second time he had been voted the honor.

* * *

The position enjoyed by this most potent of three baseball-playing brothers has not come through any quirk of the ballot box but has been established through a series of batting and fielding feats—several without parallel in diamond archives.

* * *

Joe first won the "player of the year" honor by batting .346 and hitting 46 home runs in 1937. His 194' feat of hitting safely in 56 consecutive games eclipsing all former records and sparking his club to its fifth pennant in the six seasons he has been a Yankee, made him the unanimous choice of the writers this year.

* * *

DiMaggio will receive the plaque, which first was presented in 1930 when Bill Terry of the New York Giants batted .401 to win it, at the writers' 19th annual dinner Feb. 1.

Others winning the honor have been in order, Lou Gehrig, Herb Pennock, Carl Hubbell, Dizzy Dean, Hank Greenberg, Tony Lazzeri, DiMaggio, Jimmy Foxx, Bucky Walters and Bobby Feller.

State Cage Standings Due for Scrambling

38 Ohio Squads Set To Go Through 33-Game Slate With 11 Loop Tilts

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ohio's collegiate basketball standings, twisted out of shape by last week's big barrage, are due for further scrambling this week as the state's 38 squads go through a 33-game slate, with 11 contests in the fiery Ohio conference.

Baldwin Wallace, which won three straight league games last week to set the conference pace with six victories without defeat, remains idle except for a non-loop affair with luckless Western Reserve, but two other games should have a big bearing on the title.

Heading the list is the Wittenberg-Mount Union clash at Alliance Friday night. The Mounts, currently pacing the state-wide chase with eight wins, and defending both the state and conference crowns, must brush aside the Lutherans, winners of three league events, to have a chance to repeat.

The other headliner is between Capital's Lutherans, the state's high-scoring quintet, and Muskingum's rejuvenated Muskies who romped over three foes last week in impressive style. That one is booked Wednesday at Capital.

Toledo's loss to Marshall last Monday allowed Mount Union to slip into the state-wide lead, despite the comeback of the Rockets to defeat Cincinnati and Marshall later in the week. So hectic was the play last week that only Akron in eighth place, Kenyon in 17th and Rio Grande in 29th were able to hold the places they boasted the week before, the other 35 moving up or down.

* * *

Ohio State, after six straight setbacks, put on a last-minute spurt Saturday night to defeat Iowa, 54 to 52, maintaining a home-floor superiority over the "tall corn" team. The Bucks have beaten Iowa 12 times without a setback on the home lot since '23.

* * *

The Bucks meet Northwestern here tonight, and go to Michigan Saturday.

Here's the week's slate, curtailed a bit as the boys study for next week's mid-year exams:

Monday: Northwestern at Ohio State, Toledo at Kent State, Marietta at Mount Union, De Sales at Indiana Tech, Mexico City "Y" at Rio Grande, Hillsdale at Defiance.

Tuesday: Bowling Green at Ashland, Findlay at Wittenberg, Ohio Wesleyan at Ohio U., Rider at Wooster.

Wednesday: Muskingum at Capital, Dayton at Miami.

Thursday: Ohio Northern at Ashland, De Sales at Calvin, Cincinnati at Michigan State, Findlay at Defiance.

Friday: Wittenberg at Mount Union, Hiram at Bowling Green, Defiance at Indiana Tech, Baldwin Wallace at Western Reserve.

Saturday: Ohio State at Michigan, Wittenberg at Kent State, Bowling Green at Wooster, Otterbein at Denison, John Carroll at Case, Capital at Wilmington, Muskingum at Youngstown, Hiram at Findlay, Dayton at Cincinnati, Oberlin at Cedarville, Xavier at Tennessee, Western Reserve at Detroit, and Toledo at Loyola.

Gophers Play Illini Next

Big Ten Cage Slate Hit By Mid-Year Exams.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Mid-year examinations slowed down the Big Ten basketball race to four games tonight and three Saturday but included was a week-end meeting of Illinois and Minnesota, currently the No. 1 and No. 2 quintets in the league.

* * *

The Gophers play the Chicago Maroons on the Midway tonight with every hope of picking up their fifth victory in six games. Illinois will be shooting for its fifth triumph in as many starts against Iowa.

Should both the Gophers and the Illini win, their Saturday battle would increase in importance. A Minnesota victory would vault the Gophers into the lead. An Illinois triumph would keep them in front well toward the halfway mark in the race.

Northwestern, wounded by a 49-46 defeat Saturday by Wisconsin, went to Columbus to oppose Ohio State, which stepped out of a four-game losing streak by nosing out the Hawkeyes by two points. Michigan, now beaten four times in five engagements, will be in Madison to play the rejuvenated Badgers in tonight's fourth game.

MORROW COUNTY CAGE TOURNEY DATES SET

MT. GILEAD—Opening round of the Morrow county basketball tournament will be played this year at Iberia on Feb. 21 and 22 with the championships being run off on Feb. 26, 27 and 28 in the same gymnasium.

Drawings for the first round will be made Feb. 16 in the office of the county superintendent.

THEATERS

Moving Story.

Hailed as one of the screen achievements of the year, "How Green Was My Valley," showing at the Ohio theater, tells the moving story of a simple honest family whose peace and prosperity in their native Wales was destroyed by the complexities of modern life. Told with the poetic beauty and imagination that stirred the readers of the Llewellyn novel by the same name the picture has drama in every scene, whether it be a wedding celebration or the coal miners returning from their work. Donald Crisp plays the head of the family and Sara Allgood the wife. The cast includes Walter Pidgeon, Maureen O'Hara and Roddy McDowall.

Mystery Thriller.

A gang of bloodthirsty criminals match their wits with a hard-boiled private detective in "The Maltese Falcon," Dashiell Hammett mystery thriller at the Madison. Humphrey Bogart in the leading role does a right-about-face and portrays the detective instead of the criminal as is usually the case. Mary Astor appears as Bogart's client and the cast includes Gladys George, Peter Lorre and Sydney Greenstreet. "Blues in the Night," with Priscilla Lane is the second attraction.

Havana Musical.

"Week-End In Havana," a technicolor musical starring Alice Faye, Carmen Miranda, John Payne and Cesar Romero headlines the bill at the Ritz. "International Squadron," the story of the R. A. F.'s "Foreign Legion," with Ronald Reagan shares the bill.

Tense Drama.

The efforts of a young Englishwoman to provide a sanctuary for her two addled sisters, motivates the turbulent drama. "Ladies In Retirement," showing at the Park. Ida Lupino plays the girl forced to commit crime to keep her sisters in a safe place. Elsa Lanchester and Edith Barrett enact the sisters while Louis Hayward, Evelyn Keyes and Isobel Elsoma are others in the cast. "Parachute Battalion" is the second attraction.

ORDINANCE NO. 37

An ordinance providing for the issuance of notes by the Village of South Boulevards, Ohio, in anticipation of the issuance of bonds for the purpose of the construction of sanitary sewers and a treatment plant in the Sewer District No. 1 of South Boulevards, Ohio, and declaring the necessity of the issuance of bonds for such purpose.

Whereas, at an election held on the 7th day of November, 1939, on the proposition of issuing bonds of the Village of South Boulevards, Ohio, for the purpose hereinafter stated in the sum of Twenty-seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($27,500.00), Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00) of which will be raised by special assessment bonds and Seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($7,500.00) of which shall be raised by general obligation bonds, and of a levy of taxes outside of the ten mill limitation to pay the interest and principal of such bonds, at least sixty-five per centum of those voting upon the proposition voted in favor thereof, and this council now proposes to proceed with the issuance of said bonds, and

Whereas, this council has requested the Village Clerk to issue his certificate as to the estimated life of the improvement to construct sanitary sewers and a treatment plant to be constructed from the proceeds of the bonds hereinafter referred to and of the notes to be issued in anticipation of said bonds and as to the maximum maturity of such bonds and notes and the Village Clerk has certified to this council such estimated life as exceeding five years and has further certified the maximum maturity of such bonds as twenty (20) years and such notes as one (1) year, from Oct. 1st, 1941.

Now, Therefore, Be It Ordained by the Council of the Village of South Boulevards, Ohio,

Sec. 1. That it is deemed necessary to issue bonds of the Village of South Boulevards, Ohio, in the principal sum of Twenty-seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($27,500.00) for the purpose of paying the property owners' portion, to-wit: Twenty Thousand Dollars ($20,000.00), and the Village portion, to-wit: Seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($7,500.00) of the cost and expense of construction of a complete sanitary sewerage system including a treatment plant in the Sanitary Sewer District No. 1 and adjoining property purchased for said treatment plant.

Sec. 2. That said bonds of the Village of South Boulevards shall be issued in the principal sum of Twenty-seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($27,500.00) for the purpose aforesaid. Said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of not exceeding Four Percentum (4%) per annum payable semi-annually until the principal sums are paid and shall mature in twenty (20) annual installments after their issuance.

Sec. 3. That it is necessary and this council hereby determines that notes shall be issued in anticipation of the issuance of said bonds.

Sec. 4. That such anticipatory notes in the amount of Twenty-seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($27,500.00) which sum does not exceed the amount of the bond issue, shall be issued bearing interest at the rate of not exceeding Four Percentum (4%) per annum payable at maturity. Such notes shall be dated the day of issuance and shall mature on approximately the First day of October, 1942. Such notes shall be executed and delivered in such number and such denominations as may be requested by the purchaser of such notes.

Sec. 5. Such notes shall be executed by the Mayor and the Village Clerk and bear the seal of the corporation and shall be designated Sewerage System Notes and shall be payable at the office of the Farmers Savings & Trust Co. Bank in Mansfield, Ohio; that they shall express on their face the purpose for which they are issued and that they are issued pursuant to the ordinance.

Sec. 6. Said notes shall be first offered to the officer having charge of the bond retirement fund of the village and so many of the same as shall not be taken by the said officer shall be sold at private sale by the village clerk but not for less than par and accrued interest, and the proceeds from such sale, except any premium and accrued interest thereon, and the amount thereof necessary for the payment of interest prior to the maturity of said notes shall be paid into the proper fund and used for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose. Any premium and accrued interest and the amount necessary for the payment of interest prior to the maturity shall be transferred to the bond retirement fund to be applied in the payment of principal and interest of said notes in the manner provided by law.

Sec. 7. All assessments collected for the improvements aforesaid and unexpended balances remaining in the funds after the costs and expenses of said improvements have been paid, shall be applied to the payment of said notes and the interest thereon until both are fully provided for.

Sec. 8. Said notes shall be the full general obligations of the village and the full faith, credit and revenue of said village are hereby pledged for the prompt payment of the same. The par value to be received from the sale of said bonds anticipated by said notes and any excess fund resulting from the issuance of said notes shall, to the extent necessary, be used only for the retirement of said notes at maturity together with interest thereon and is hereby pledged for such purpose.

Sec. 9. During the year or years while such notes run, there shall be levied on all taxable property in the Village of South Boulevards, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually not less than that which would have been levied if the bonds had been issued without the prior issue of such notes. Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time that taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said taxes shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levies hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with the interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the principal and interest of said notes or the bonds in anticipation of which they are issued when and as the same fall due.

Sec. 10. The village clerk is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the County Auditor.

Sec. 11. That this ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Passed: Jan. 6, 1942.
R. K. CLARK, Mayor.

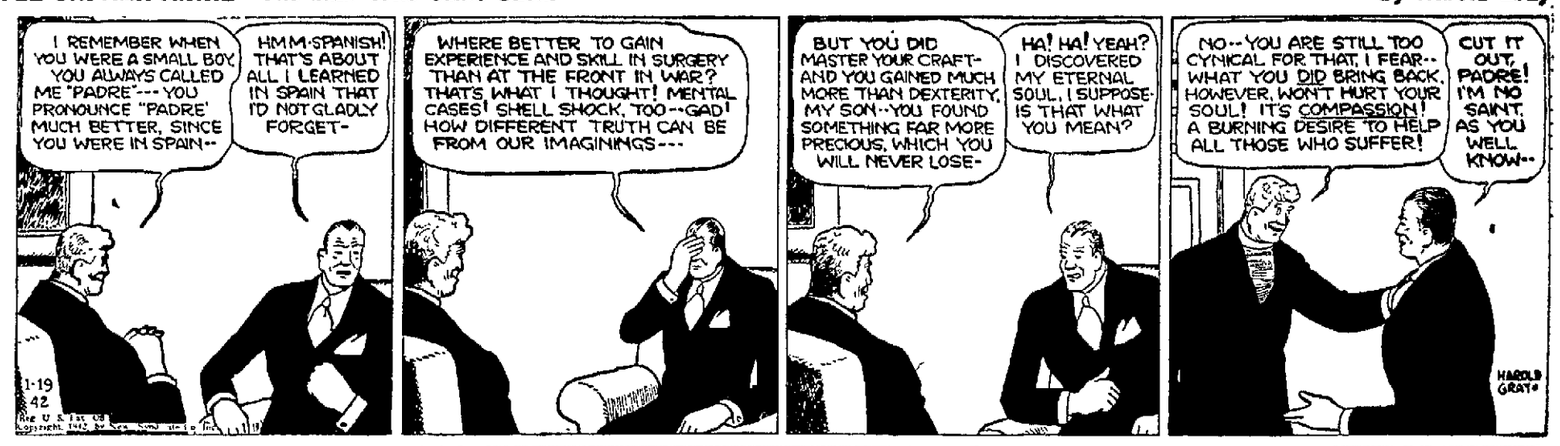
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—The Man Who Came Back. By Harold Gray



I REMEMBER WHEN YOU WERE A SMALL BOY YOU ALWAYS CALLED ME "PADRE"--- YOU PRONOUNCE "PADRE" MUCH BETTER, SINCE YOU WERE IN SPAIN--
HMM-SPANISH! THAT'S ABOUT ALL I LEARNED IN SPAIN THAT I'D NOT GLADLY FORGET-
1-19 42

BUT YOU DID MASTER YOUR CRAFT- AND YOU GAINED MUCH MORE THAN DEXTERITY, MY SON--YOU FOUND SOMETHING FAR MORE PRECIOUS, WHICH YOU WILL NEVER LOSE-
HA! HA! YEAH? I DISCOVERED MY ETERNAL SOUL. I SUPPOSE IS THAT WHAT YOU MEAN?
NO--YOU ARE STILL TOO CYNICAL FOR THAT, I FEAR-- WHAT YOU DID BRING BACK, HOWEVER, WON'T HURT YOUR SOUL! IT'S COMPASSION! A BURNING DESIRE TO HELP ALL THOSE WHO SUFFER!
CUT IT OUT, PADRE! I'M NO SAINT, AS YOU WELL KNOW--

DIRECTION OF STOCK MARKET STAYS OBSCURE

Minor Gains, Losses Balance Early Trade on Wall Street.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market's direction remained obscure today as minor gains and losses continued in most departments.

Mild early support was accorded N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Standard Oil (N. J.), Goodyear, Woolworth, Glenn Martin, International Nickel, American Telephone, General Electric, Philip Morris and Dow Chemical.

Inclined to limp were Du Pont, which fell about 3 to a new 1941-42 low; Allied Chemical, General Motors, U. S. Steel and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Bullish forces, brokers said, still were handicaped by the growing mence of enemy submarine attacks off the Atlantic coast.

Boardrooms scanned the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said lines were being drawn tighter in this industry and that in most products high priorities were covering production almost to the exclusion of civilian supply.
